This workshop is for those involved in or supporting children's work in Quaker meetings who are working with small numbers of children of a wide age range.

The cost of the workshop is £5 per person payable on the day. All participants should bring a packed lunch.

The aims of the workshop are:

- To equip adults in a Quaker setting to work with a small group of children with a wide range of ages
- To help adults in a Quaker setting to share and explore difficulties, dilemmas and joys of working with small groups of children with a wide range of ages
- To introduce or reinforce ideas about children's learning and development at different ages to assist with appropriate nurture, planning and provision when working with small groups of children with a wide range of ages

By the end of the workshop participants will have:

- Explored difficulties, dilemmas and positive possibilities of working with small groups of children with a wide range of ages
- Considered and discussed theories and ideas about children's learning, well being and development needs at different ages
- Practiced planning and delivering a session that could be used with a small groups of children with a wide range of ages
