The Roundabout The roundabout just sat there Amid the chaos of houses & traggic lights Directing traffic without regulations. Traggie lights have rules & stor traggie down Angry blaving of horns showing displeasure at being stopped. The roundabout just sat there The traggie not stopping as it drove round it Options to go in any direction, to wherever, whink of the possibilities. Houses have walls, dark & looming Tall & unrelenting with no compromise, no way through . The roundabout just sat there A small haven of beauty, a tree, a bush, a pile of stones, or a flover bed No dead ends, if you miss your turn - off, just go round again. cars crash & cut across others constantly competing, trying to get shead. The roundabout just sat there The cars all go the same way, make way for others, drive alongside them
