

Active Witness

Exploring collective Quaker action for nonviolent social change

A series of 3 FREE one-day workshops
Bristol, January - April 2017

Workshop details

Saturday 14th January 2017, 10am - 5pm

Power, change and collective Quaker action

Saturday 25th February 2017, 10am - 5pm

Campaign planning & effective group work

Saturday 22nd April 2017, 10am - 5pm

Sustaining our witness

All workshops take place at Redland Quaker Meeting House, Bristol, BS6 6JE (highly accessible, good train & bus links).

The course is free, although donations towards costs are welcome.

The workshops build on each other so participants should commit to all three.

To register online or download and print a form, visit

<http://turningtide.org.uk/active-witness-bristol>

Registration deadline: Sunday 8th January 2017

The course is offered by Redland Quaker Meeting, with Turning the Tide, a programme of Quaker Peace & Social Witness.

Turning the Tide courses are highly participatory, building on the valuable knowledge and learning that participants bring to the group. Our role is to support groups to find their own creative solutions. We work with people at grassroots acting for change, and draw on the rich history of effective nonviolence movements in Britain and across the world.

turningtide@quaker.org.uk 0207 663 1064 www.turningtide.org.uk

For Friends who wish to:

- Explore how to make an effective Quaker contribution to social justice issues of our day
- Connect with local Friends interested in taking collective action for social change
- Develop your understanding of power, social change and collective action
- Learn practical tools for taking meaningful action for change
- Experience working collectively and effectively with like-minded Friends

Active Witness

Exploring collective Quaker action for nonviolent social change

A series of 3 FREE one-day workshops
Bristol, January - April 2017

Workshop details

Saturday 14th January 2017, 10am - 5pm
Power, change and collective Quaker action

Saturday 25th February 2017, 10am - 5pm
Campaign planning & effective group work

Saturday 22nd April 2017, 10am - 5pm
Sustaining our witness

All workshops take place at Redland Quaker Meeting House, Bristol, BS6 6JE (highly accessible, good train & bus links).

The course is free, although donations towards costs are welcome.

The workshops build on each other so participants should commit to all three.

To register online or download and print a form, visit <http://turningtide.org.uk/active-witness-bristol>
Registration deadline: Sunday 8th January 2017

The course is offered by Redland Quaker Meeting, with Turning the Tide, a programme of Quaker Peace & Social Witness.

Turning the Tide courses are highly participatory, building on the valuable knowledge and learning that participants bring to the group. Our role is to support groups to find their own creative solutions. We work with people at grassroots acting for change, and draw on the rich history of effective nonviolence movements in Britain and across the world.

turningtide@quaker.org.uk 0207 663 1064 www.turningtide.org.uk

For Friends who wish to:

- Explore how to make an effective Quaker contribution to social justice issues of our day
- Connect with local Friends interested in taking collective action for social change
- Develop your understanding of power, social change and collective action
- Learn practical tools for taking meaningful action for change
- Experience working collectively and effectively with like-minded Friends